Quick Guide to WRITING A PERSONAL STATEMENT (FOR MASTERS-LEVEL COURSES)

The personal statement is an important part of the postgraduate application process, and it is essential that you get it right. Here are your top tips to show off your skills, motivation and attitude for studying a particular course.

DIFFERENCE FROM PERSONAL STATEMENTS FOR UNDERGRADUATE:
The word length is higher as you are expected to provide more detail. It is advisable to provide evidence of a wider reading of the literature on the issues that you have chosen to focus your statement on. Consider how you can provide evidence of your own research.

RESEARCH
Research the course, the institution and the location to attend.
Think of other courses you may want to do in the postgraduate sector.
Read through the entry requirements and the literature of your chosen subject. Be aware of the research you plan to do, and think about how you can provide evidence of this ability.
Contact the university's postgraduate admissions office to get advice on the application process.
Consider how the university's award will contribute to your career and the requirements of the course.

WRITING THE FOUR P's

PERSONAL STATEMENT
Demonstrate your academic training, the further reading, the research interests, motivation and why you wish to study this course.
PERSONALITY Why you are an excellent candidate for this course, including academic, career goals.

PRESENTATION
Make sure you:
Check your spelling and grammar.
A personal statement demonstrates your ability to present information in a clear, concise, well-structured and logical way.
Use a clear structure. Start on your own, then move on to your research and why you wish to study this course.
Use a clear structure. Start on your own, then move on to your research and why you wish to study this course.

RESEARCH THE ROLE
What do you want to do? What are the general skills and attributes that you need to do this? What does your programme offer?
Research the entry requirements for the course.
Use a clear structure. Start on your own, then move on to your research and why you wish to study this course.

IDENTIFY YOUR SKILLS
Identify the skills that you need for your role.
Check your spelling and grammar.

GRADUATE OUTCOMES

- Introduced five years ago
- Centralised Administration (HESA)
- 15 month vs previous 6 month post-graduation census date
- Lower response rate target (50% - 60%)
- Home, Undergraduate Focused.

But it's not just about Graduate Outcomes...

Finally...
Some advice for your applications

- Do your research! Use LinkedIn & informal enquiry channels to find out more about the context of the role, the service, and the institution.
- Be specific! Phrases such as “I want to join XXX because you are a well renowned University” won’t cut it.
- Analyse & Provide Evidence. Demonstrate how your experience & qualifications link to the role, and provide specific evidence. “Non-Careers experience” can be very valuable!
- Demonstrate Industry Awareness! Keep up to date with the latest news on the H.E. sector.
- Practice what you’ll preach! Can you structure a personal statement, or a set of competency questions appropriately?
